FOUND HANGING
FROM A RAFTERGeorge Hayes, Forty-Five Years Old, a Prominent Farmer Committed Suicide.

WAS FOUND BY FARM HAND

Died This Afternoon at 2 O'clock After Lying For More Than Five Hours.

NO CAUSE IS GIVEN FOR DEED

Rumored That he Took Poison—Is Survived by Widow and One Child.

George Hayes, 45 years old, a well known farmer of Orange township, committed suicide today by hanging at his home four miles southwest of Milroy. Hayes was found hanging from a rafter in the barn about 8:30 o'clock this morning by a hired hand and he lived until two o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Hayes and one of the farm hands were engaged in moving some lumber from the barn to a small house nearby and on one of the trips to and from the barn, the farm hand missed Mr. Hayes and thought it strange that he should disappear so suddenly. He found Mr. Hayes dangling from a rafter in the hay mow. His feet were within two feet of the floor and life was all but extinct. The body was cut down and Dr. Lampton of Milroy was called. Hayes was black in the face and never regained consciousness, dying at two o'clock.

A rumor in this city and Milroy was to the effect that he had taken poison just before hanging himself, but this could not be confirmed. The suicide left no letters of explanation as far as could be learned and his friends are at a loss as to why he should take his life. It is stated that Hayes had no domestic trouble and his financial affairs were said to be in no way accountable for the deed.

Deceased had enjoyed the best of health lately and his friends in and around Milroy say the only reason they can give is that his mind was affected. It is stated that Hayes had acted queer for some time and feeling that he would become insane decided to take his life.

Coroner Shauck of Arlington was called to investigate the case and at a late hour this afternoon had not given his verdict.

Mr. Hayes was a son-in-law of the late Charles Selby and lived on the old Selby farm. He was well known in this city and county and his tragic end came as a great shock to his friends. He is survived by a widow and one child, a daughter about six years old. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

ROBBER NOT LOCATED.

That the man who entered the merchandise car at the C. H. & D. freight depot and stole several articles will never be located is the opinion of the local police. The fact that the railroad officials never notified the police until so long after the crime was committed and then never notified Chief McAllister, probably accounts for why the man will not be found. The first that Chief McAllister heard of the robbery was through the local papers last evening.

A good well was located by the Rushville Natural Gas Company on the Bruce Graham farm north of the city this morning. It is said to be one of the best wells which has been shot in this county for some time.

EYE HURT IN STRANGE WAY

Sylvester Myers Stoops Over Auto
Tire; It Blows Out.

Sylvester Myers, who resides a mile and a half south of Morristown, will probably lose the sight of his left eye, the result of a most unusual accident in which he suffered yesterday. Mr. Myers was repairing one of the tires of his automobile and had just pumped it up after getting the inner tube patched. He was stooping over looking at the tire when a blow-out occurred directly in front of his face. His face was terribly lacerated and the condition of his left eye is such that the attending physician, Dr. R. S. McCray of Morristown, believes he will lose the sight. Mr. Myers late this afternoon was suffering terribly from his injuries.

OSBORN ARRESTED
ON NEW AFFIDAVITNow Charged with Voluntary Manslaughter Instead of Involuntary as Returned by Grand Jury.

IS BASED ON TECHNICALITY

Judge Blair this morning dismissed the case of the State vs. William H. Osborn, charged with manslaughter, sent here from Fayette county on a change of venue. On a motion filed by Prosecutor Edwards of Fayette county and Prosecutor O'Neil of this county, Osborn was immediately re-arrested on a new affidavit charging voluntary manslaughter. He was released on $3000 bond and arrangements were made to try the case the first week of the November term.

The motion to dismiss was based on a technicality. The grand jury indictment returned by the Fayette county grand jury against Osborn charged him with involuntary manslaughter and Prosecutor O'Neil told Judge Blair in court that on this ground he wished the case dismissed as he believed he had no case on account of the faulty affidavit. Judge Blair passed upon the motion and Osborn was re-arrested. The new affidavit charges him with voluntary manslaughter. Osborn was ordered to choose a place of hearing the case and had a chance to take a change of venue, but decided on Rush county.

LOCATE GOOD GAS WELL

Central Fuel Company Shoots Another
on Kirk Farm Today.

Workmen employed by the Central Fuel Gas Company shot a well on the Morris Kirk farm, five miles south-east of the city this morning and it is believed that it will give an excellent flow of gas. It is the third well which the company has located on the Kirk farm recently. The company has three gangs of men at work out there. One gang is kept busy cleaning out the wells, another pulling the pipes and another plugging abandoned gas wells.

POISONED BY OYSTERS.

Ptomaine poisoning, caused by eating oysters, came near causing the death of Fred Stickford, Jr., and wife Sunday night at their home, three miles west of Waldron but they are believed to be out of danger today. The family physician said he felt sure of their recovery now, as they had made great improvement since yesterday.

JOY RIDERS TOOK
HORSE AND BUGGYStolen Outfit Belonging to Wesley
Lindell of Near Orange Recovered in Connersville.

SHOWED SIGNS OF HARD DRIVE

Rig Was Discovered and Police Notified
Just Before Message of Theft Arrived.

A stolen horse and buggy, belonging to Wesley Lindell, a prominent Rush county farmer, were recovered in Connersville yesterday morning to the great satisfaction of the owner, says the Connersville News.

Mr. Lindell missed his horse which was a handsome bay, early Monday morning. It had been harnessed in the stable, hitched to an old buggy which stood in a shed, and driven from the Lindell home, which is in Rush county, a few miles west of Orange, toward Glenwood. The owner summoned help as soon as the property was missed and tracked the horse to Glenwood. Evidently the theft was committed early Sunday night for the tracks near home were distinct, while as the searching party approached Glenwood they grew dim, from the action of rain, and in the village were lost altogether. Telephone messages were hurriedly sent to several cities and that which was sent here was one of the first.

It chanced that a few minutes before it came, the police department had received word from Marshal Pippin of East Connersville that he had found a strange horse, hitched to an old buggy, standing at a post in front of the old Fox home in East Main street before daylight Monday morning. This information was conveyed to Mr. Lindell, who came to Connersville at once and identified the property. The horse was unhurt but showed signs of hard driving.

This, like the recent temporary theft of Elijah Brookbank's horse, and like similar thefts of bicycles in Connersville and other vehicles elsewhere in this vicinity, is somewhat puzzling. The horse was a good one and would have carried the culprit far before daylight, yet for reasons best known to himself he saw fit to leave the outfit here and for this the owner is glad indeed.

The absence of any dependable clue is regrettable, for there is no class of wrongdoers which the public would more gladly see heavily punished than that to which this joy rider, or whatever he is, belongs.

GRAND JURY WILL PROBE

Henry County Jurors to Look Into Knightstown "Tiger" Evil.

In summing up the duties of the Henry county grand jury which convenes soon the New Castle Times says:

The alleged existence of blind tigers at Knightstown will come next in order, and there will be a number of Knightstown people summoned to tell what they know. Prosecutor Evans received a letter from a Knightstown minister this morning in connection with the blind tigers. The minister stated that personally he knew nothing about the tigers outside of seeing beer cases at the freight depot and an "occasional" drunk man. He cited several persons, however, whom he thought might be able to give the grand jury evidence. The persons named will be summoned before the jury.

IMPORTANT IS COURT'S VERDICTJudge Blair Renders Decision For I.
G. Richey of New Haven, Conn.,
Against Big Four.

$2,000 DAMAGES FOR INJURIES

Court Holds Plaintiff Should Have Been Informed of Conditions of Shipping Contract.

Judge Alonzo Blair handed down a decision in the circuit court this morning that was important in that it is a point of law which has never been touched on in any decision. It was in the case of Irwin G. Richey of New Haven, Conn., against the Big Four railroad for $7,000 damages for injury to Bessie V., a race horse which Richey bought of George Weeks, a local trainer for $2,500. The court returned a judgment of $2,100 for the plaintiff and adjudged the costs in the case against the Big Four.

It is likely that the Big Four will appeal the case to the supreme court so as to make a test suit of it since there has never been any opinion on that particular phase of the law.

Judge Blair in his findings which he read to the plaintiff's and the defendant's attorneys this morning, stated that the evidence showed that Bessie V., a race mare was sold to Irwin G. Richey of New Haven by George Weeks of this city for $2,500. Further he stated that the mare was injured before she left the Big Four yards in this city.

It was brought out in the testimony that Weeks acted as Richey's agent here and loaded the mare on a car in the Big Four yards here. The testimony showed also that a car was switched onto the switch where the car carrying the mare stood and was thrown against the car with great force. The evidence showed, the court said in his findings, that one of the straps which held the mare in place in the car was broken by the sudden impact between the two cars and she was thrown down, her fore legs apart so that she was badly sprained in the shoulders. Furthermore the testimony in the case showed that a man named Fred Hartsch was placed on the car with the mare by Mr. Weeks and was instructed to bathe her shoulders and care for her until the car arrived at New Haven. The accident happened in March, 1908.

According to the court's findings, the evidence showed that the mare had been useless as a race horse since her injury and that the defendant had not been able to disprove that. The evidence also revealed, he said, that she was no good since the accident except for a road mare. He placed the value of four hundred dollars on her for that. Deducting that from the amount paid for her, $2,500, leaves $2,100, which sum was awarded the plaintiff by the court. The costs were adjudged against the defendant.

The whole question hinged on a point of law which has never been really decided. Railroads, according to the court, have two contracts for shipping stock. One is known as the Common Bill of Lading Contract, and the other is known as the Uniform Limited Liability Contract. It was shown in the hearing in the local court, according to the findings of the court, that Bessie V. was shipped under the Uniform Limited Liability Contract. This contract is in substance that the shipper will be given reduced rates for shipping and in return the shipper shall not have more than one hundred dollars for injury to his stock shipped.

CAPT. J. K. GOWDY IS ILL

Well Known Republican and Active
Worker is Confined to Bed.

Capt. John K. Gowdy of 619 North Perkins street is confined to his bed with illness and has been forced to remain at home for the last two weeks. He was little improved today and doubt is expressed by his friends if he will be able to leave his home on Tuesday evening, October tenth, when the big Republican love feast and smoker will be held at the coliseum. Mr. Gowdy, who is a former county as well as State chairman and who served as consul general to Paris, France, is very much interested in politics. It is with the deepest regret that his friends hear of his illness.

BIG BOOSTER
CROWD WILL GOExpected That Twenty Automobiles
Will go to Milroy Thursday Evening For Fall Festival.

TO ADVERTISE COMING EVENTS

Prospects are that the largest booster crowd that ever went out of Rushville in automobiles will go to Milroy Thursday evening from here to Milroy to attend the fall festival and to advertise the fall horse show and "Sherman day" here. A number of automobile owners in the county and city as well have promised to furnish machines and it is likely that at least fifteen or twenty automobiles will make the trip. It is requested that all of the automobile owners decorate their machines in light green and white, the colors of the horse show. The machines will gather on the court house square at 6:30 o'clock.

The program at the fall festival for Thursday evening will consist of an entertainment by the Red Men's lodge of Milroy. They will show a scene of Indians on their ponies capturing and scalping pale faces under the glare of an arc light. Immediately after that they will burn the white man at the stake. His deliverance by the prophet will be acted out also.

SEVENTY-TWO TO BE IN "KONCERT"J. Walter Wilson, Director, Announces That Number Will Take Part in Entertainment.

ITS SUCCESS IS NOW ASSURED

That there will be seventy-two singers in the "Old Folks Koncert" to be given at the coliseum in the city park Monday night for the benefit of the Rush County Chautauqua Association to pay off the coliseum debt, is the assertion of J. Walter Wilson, director, today. A roll call was held at the rehearsal last night and it was found that that number would be able to appear in the concert. Fifty-two members of the company were present for the rehearsal last night. The last rehearsal of the whole company will be held in the court house assembly room Thursday evening. The success of the home-talent concert is assured already according to the promoters and it is predicted that a packed house will greet the local singers in which, it is believed, will be the best home-talent affair ever put on here.

MAKE FURTHER
LOVE FEAST PLANSCommittee on Arrangements Meets
This Morning And Other Committees Are Appointed.

ARRANGING FOR BIG CROWD

Personal Invitations Are Mailed to Republican Editors Over State,
Urging Them to Come.

The committee which was appointed by Vern Norris, county chairman of the Republican party, to arrange for the big Republican love feast and smoker to be held in the coliseum in the city park Tuesday evening, October tenth, "Sherman day," met in the clerk's office this morning to prepare for the occasion. Several small committees were appointed to do the work which will be attached to the meeting and a committee started out at once to raise the money to defray the expenses of the day.

The following committees were appointed to attend to the work which will be attached to the meeting at night:

Finance—R. P. Havens, Will M. Frazee, Melvin Moore, Will C. McCoglin and Verne Norris.

Decorations—Will M. Bliss, A. L. Riggs and Harry Wyatt.

Refreshments and Music—Bert Mullin, Roy Harrold and Will Jay.

The finance committee started out immediately after it was given life to raise the fund to defray the expenses of the evening. It is predicted that the visiting as well as the Rushville and Rush county Republicans will be able to consume a lot of cigars in one evening and the local manufacturers are urged to have a good stock in reserve to be bought in case of necessity.

It was planned this morning for the Rushville brass band to be employed to furnish the music for the occasion. It is likely also that a local quartet will be procured to furnish some numbers on the program.

Personal letters will be mailed to the prominent workers and the precinct committeemen all over Rush county and it is thought that the Republican party in this county will be represented. The indications are that several hundred Republicans in Rush county will be present.

Personal invitations to one hundred and thirty Republican editors in Indiana were mailed last evening and it is very probable that the newspaper men will be here in force. In view of the fact that it is the first Republican meeting of State-wide importance since the last campaign there is much interest focused in it and for that reason many editors and newspaper writers from all over the State will be attracted here to the meeting.

No one will be admitted, with the exception of visitors, to the coliseum, without a ticket which may be procured free of charge. Every Rush county and Rushville Republican should see some member of the committee on arrangements and get a ticket which will admit them to the coliseum for the love feast. All visiting Republicans will be admitted without a ticket. The tickets may be procured from any of the following persons, members of the committee on arrangements: John H. Kiplinger, A. L. Riggs, Will C. McCoglin, Ed Crosby, Thomas M. Green, James V. Young, Will M. Bliss, Will M. Sparks, Claude Cambern, Otto E. Humes, Will M. Frazee, Will P. Jay, Harry Wyatt and Roy Harrold.

Quite a good deal of damage was done by the storm the other evening. It blew the roof off of Sant Hinchman's residence in the country. Three shade trees were blown over in Marshall Hinchman's yard and some slate off the roof.

Some amage was done in the town, limbs and parts of trees, parts of shingle roofs were blown around here and there and everywhere.

There is a husband, who sometimes misrepresents to his wife in this manner "well wife I am going to the country to purchase some water-melons and I'll be back soon." But the hubby meets some old cronies in the woods and they have some fun and hubby loses some of the hard-earned money with which he promised to purchase some water melons for his wife. He arrived at home in due season and told his wife that the farmer was not at home and therefore he could not buy any water-melons. The above is no "Fairy Tale," but a real occurrence.

There he sat smoking his pipe of clay, on or near the close of day. He sat and smoked until his pipe was empty. He may be seen there in the self same position almost every evening. Well it is blessed privilege and none dare molest or make afraid.

Keeps Your Stove "Always Ready for Company"

A bright, clean, glossy stove is the joy and pride of every housekeeper. But it is hard to keep a stove nice and shiny—unless Black Silk Stove Polish is used.

Here is the reason: Black Silk Stove Polish sticks right to the iron. It doesn't rub off or dust off. Its shine lasts four times longer than the shine of any other polish. You only need to polish one-fourth as often, yet your stove will be cleaner, brighter and better looking than it has been since you first bought it. Use

FLUNG ROSES OVER "THE PARTY WALL"

Taft and Bryan Fraternize at Lincoln.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 3.—They "flung roses over the party wall" in Lincoln, to phrase it in President Taft's own words, and a Nebraska audience cheered frantically when Mr. Taft clasped hands over a luncheon table with W. J. Bryan. The luncheon was given in the president's honor by the Commercial club of Lincoln, and Bryan sat at the president's right and offered the toast that welcomed him to the city. It was a typical bit of Bryan oratory and at the end the peerless leader lugged in a mention of his local option fight by requesting the banqueters to fill their glasses "with the beverage upon which the Almighty has set the seal of his approval and drink a toast to the president."

It happened, unfortunately, that most of the bottles of sparkling spring water had been placed on the table without their caps having been removed, and the haste of banqueters to get at the water in time nearly upset the dignity of the occasion.

The president replied, speaking of Mr. Bryan as Lincoln's most distinguished citizen. "I have had occasion to say in times past," continued the president, "that there were no roses so beautiful as those that grow over the party wall and to be received by Mr. Bryan at this time is to me a great pleasure, which I must express."

The banqueters cheered lustily as the peerless leader arose to thank the president and to clasp his hand.

Governor Aldrich of Nebraska introduced the president for his principal address. The president spoke on peace.

CALIFORNIA IS AFTER EVIDENCE

Wants McNamara Stuff Removed to Los Angeles.

FORMAL PETITION TO COURT

The Dynamite, Time Clocks, Fuses, Etc., Together With Books and Records of the Iron Workers Seized at the Time of John McNamara's Arrest and Under Guard at Indianapolis, Sought by California Officers.

Indianapolis, Oct. 3.—In criminal court a petition has been filed asking that Judge Joseph T. Markey of the criminal court, grant permission to the state of California to transfer to Los Angeles county, California, the books, papers, dynamite and clocks confiscated in Indianapolis after the arrest of J. J. McNamara April 22. The petitioner is J. D. Fredericks, district attorney of Los Angeles county. He was represented by Ferdinand Winter, attorney. Judge Markey will hold a hearing on the petition Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Pending the hearing, Judge Markey ordered that all of the evidence held by Marion county be kept under guard. Prosecutor Frank P. Baker had intended returning part of the books and papers which were taken from the office of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers to the association, but he agreed with the court to hold everything until the disposition of the petition. The things Mr. Baker had planned to return to the iron workers' association included nothing relating to the dynamiting cases. The order of the court will also prevent Prosecutor Baker or Superintendent of Police Hyland from taking before Thursday any of the evidence to California, where they have been summoned to appear as witnesses in the McNamara trial. The subpoenas ordered Baker and Hyland to bring with them the evidence they possessed.

Articles Held as Evidence.

The petition sets forth that J. J. McNamara and James B. McNamara are under indictment for murder in Los Angeles county and that their trial has been set for Oct. 11. The petitioner avers that the crime which the McNamaras are charged with was accomplished by means of nitro-glycerine, dynamite and other explosives attached to clocks and that some of this material is in possession of Marion county officials. It is also pointed out that in this evidence there are important admissions in letters that tend to connect John J. McNamara as a conspirator in the dynamiting outrages. The petitioner specifically names the articles, which he says are held as evidence against John J. McNamara. Sticks of dynamite, boxes containing fuses, fourteen timeclocks, about the size of a large watch, are named. Checkbooks, ledgers and correspondence of John J. McNamara are set out in the petition. The dynamite which was found on the farm of D. Jones, west of Indianapolis is named as part of the evidence wanted.

Mr. Winter said the court was not obliged to grant the petition. He said the state of California would bear the expense of transferring the material to Los Angeles. The attorney for the McNamara was present and said the removal of the evidence to California would be opposed.

No Foolish Divorce Cases Will Stand in Judge Fox's Court.

Richmond, Ind., Oct. 3.—When the October term of the Wayne circuit court opened Judge Henry C. Fox glanced over the docket and found thereon fourteen suits for divorce, all filed within the last month. The judge, who has achieved fame because of his firm stand against the divorce evil, took occasion in open court to admonish attorneys interested in divorce cases. He declared that where cruel and inhuman treatment was alleged by the complainant there must be more than a pretext and that it must be shown specifically there had been such treatment. Where the testimony went to show that a reconciliation followed the alleged cruel treatment and that the divorce suit was not filed for some time after such reconciliation the court said he would refuse the divorce.

SUDDEN DEATH OF OLD NAVAL OFFICER

Admiral Schley Succumbed to Heart Attack.

New York, Oct. 3.—Winfield Scott Schley, rear admiral, U. S. N., retired, fell dead in 44th street. He was a civil war veteran. He served long in the Pacific squadron, and then took charge of the South Atlantic fleet during the Spanish-American war. He won fame by his victory at Santiago bay.

Admiral Schley had been out of town and on his return here had gone to the New York Yacht club in West Forty-fourth street. After a short stay at the club Admiral Schley left the clubhouse and started to walk along Forty-fourth street toward Fifth avenue, when he became suddenly ill. A hurry call was sent for physicians and an ambulance, but before aid could reach him the admiral was dead.

Washington Shocked.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The sudden death of Admiral Schley was a distinct shock to his friends in this city, where he had resided since his retirement from active service on Oct. 9, 1901, and had been engaged in writing his memoirs. Had he lived until next Monday he would have been seventy-three years of age. He enjoyed a greater personal popularity with the public in Washington than any other naval officer except Admiral Dewey.

THIS PAPER REPRESENTS FOREIGN ADVERTISING BY THE Farmers and Automobiles.

An agricultural paper, defending the allegation that a lot of farmers are going into debt for automobiles, refuses to become alarmed at the report. Even if it is true, the paper says, there is nothing incompatible with good business in the proposition. Then it says:

"Of all men the farmer needs the automobile most. He needs to be able to slip into town and back while the men rest at noon. He needs a means of having a chat with the man in the next county, after the chores are done at night. He needs a method of getting into touch with every other farmer within a radius of 100 miles. Above all, he needs it for his lonely wife."

There is, as a matter of fact, no more reason why a person should not go into debt for an automobile, if it can be used as a profitable investment, than there is why he should not go into debt for any other piece of machinery to be used in his business. The trouble is that a great many people go into debt for automobiles when the machine can not and do not prove to be a profitable investment—as where they are used as luxuries and when the party buying them can not afford any such luxuries.

But the agricultural paper argues that the automobile on the farm pays a dividend in making the farmer more efficient, in enabling him to make more money in operating his farm, and in adding to the health and happiness of his wife—and if the health and happiness and contentment of a farmer's wife is not a dividend by what are we to measure life?

The complaint is often heard from young men that this country no longer offers much in the way of opportunity, says the Huntington Herald. That nowadays the trusts head off any man who has in mind the development of an independent business and that no man has a chance for anything but a lifetime spent as a hired man. The complaint is not well founded. The present, just as the past, and just as it will be for all time to come, offers its opportunities, and the young man who has energy, industry and brains, will not be downed in the race of life. Pluck, energy and optimism are more to the young men than capital invested or an extensive establishment.

Throughout the ages the whole battle of life has been the battle of man against man, rather than the battle of dollars against pennies. It will probably always be so, although to be sure the complexion of the opportunities may change with environment and circumstances. A century ago or less, with the introduction of machines in the spinning industry in England, the same cry arose that there was no longer opportunity for a man unless he owned machines. But successes were hewn out since the introduction of machinery nevertheless, although the form of the tool had changed.

Success does not lie in epigrams or fine phrases. They will not help a single individual to succeed unless, indeed, they should stir within him the slumbering germs of initiative and energy.

Opportunities does not flaunt herself from the housetops, where she may be seen of all men, but opportunity is just as conspicuous at the present time as it has ever been in the human race history. On the other hand, the complaints of those who assert that there is no larger opportunity for the individual, may continue forever without one whit interrupting the course of human events.

The Daily Republican, never in its whole life published as mean a paragraph as the following from the Fort Wayne News. When the Democrats have elected LaFollette president, it is a safe proposition that the editor of the News will not be cordially welcomed at the White House door:

The wife of Bob LaFollette has issued invitations for "a doughnut picnic" for the suffragettes, the function to be given this week at the LaFollette farm in Wisconsin. The idea is a peculiarly happy and felicitous one, and she can encourage it by using Bob as the hole in the doughnut.

Fort Wayne News: Master Rudolph Leeds, who is spending, in an endeavor to establish himself in the Indianapolis newspaper field, the tainted dollars his father left him, has discovered that the Fort Wayne News and Winfield T. Durbin are in conspiracy to deliver Indiana into the hands of the republican stand patters. The child should be bored for the simples.

It is the same story all over the country, and Rush county furnishes no exception to the rule. Triumphant Republicanism is in the saddle, and the signs of the times are read in the carping criticism and whining grouch of the Democratic donkey is heard on every hand.

Mr. Taft asks for a more kindly feeling toward great corporations. In view of all their sufferings, it does seem about time to get up a benefit dance or a theatrical entertainment for Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Morgan.

An Albany newspaper asks why there are so many fat women nowadays. Our observation is that adipose tissue increases as the manipulation of the broom and dish towel decline.

Italy is talking up bold to Turkey, and the people who think the Italians never did anything but live in tarred paper shacks and dig sewer ditches may learn something they did not know before.

The automobilists complain bitterly of the New Jersey laws, but many of the people of that State feel that some folks can't be trusted on the public roads with anything higher powered than a wheel barrow.

The county fair crowds who insist that the aviator shall give them their money's worth by going up in a gale seem to think a man's life is worth no more than a fifty cent ticket.

Mr. Taft says the anti-trust law must be enforced, though the big corporations always looked at it as of the nature of a comic supplement to the Congressional Record.

Jack Johnson says the preachers are putting the first class fighters out of business, which shows a commendable effort on the part of the parsons to earn their salaries.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has been carrying mail by aeroplane, but he might have had lots more fun gossiping with the farmers' wives if he had gone out with a rural carrier.

The newspapers are discussing the future of aviation, but if it is anything like the future of aviators, it will soon end in an untimely grave.

Daffydil Doings Down In Dippy Dell

They were riding along a country road tranquilly, he and she, when something appeared in the distance. They could not determine whether it was an airship or a buzzard. Their horse pricked up its ears and scented danger in the distance. He, being a gallant young countryman, persisted in driving on even though his girl demanded that he turn the horse's head about and beat it. Still he refused. On came the terrible monster at a rapid gait. Just as it was about to sweep down on them the horse reared, turned to one side and upset the two young lovers in the ditch. They glanced toward the heavens and saw a monster hawk flying through the air with Boone Thorpe astride its back. With a magaphone to his lips, Boone bellowed: "If a hen laid two eggs a day, would Floyd Hog-sett?"

Step lively boys, only a few more bottles left.

And again it's no wonder to us that none of those people were drowned when that 900,000 gallons of New Orleans molasses overflowed down at New Orleans. Anyone with any speed worth mentioning can outrun New Orleans molasses.

The more we see of these new fall hats the more we are convinced that the fashion makers are up against it as they never were before.

That's what you say?

That Pierrot shape for instance. Those are the kind that have the high crown, coming to a jagged point like a craig, and a narrow rim. Yes, they do look like a clown's hat.

"Pierrot," says Webster, "in old French pantomime was a jesting character. In English use, a buffoon or itinerant minstrel made up."

Buffoon, we find, is a clown and the natural inference is that anyone who wears a Pierrot shape is a clown. Hardly that bad, though.

But the men who wear these fuzzy hats should not complain about their wife's headgear. Some of them have more on 'em than the heads they adorn.

People who make hourly assertions that they are living up to their own light, always leave the impression with us that they were very careful to get a reasonably dim burner to begin with.

Little Tales of Human Interest

WHY HE HAS EYES.

The other day little Donald Power, son of Mrs. Lillian Power, was over at a neighbor's house playing with a toy gun. But it was one of the toy guns that might do some harm. The neighbor at whose house he was playing warned him to be careful as he might hurt someone.

"Now, do be careful, Donald," she said, "you'll put somebody's eyes out with that."

"Oh, that's all right," he replied. "I can see good. Before God give me eyes I couldn't see, but when he did, he give me good ones because he knew I would be buttin' into something."

"STUNG."

There's a moral to this tale. Whether it is to attend to your own business or never attempt to befriend a neighbor is an unsettled issue. One day recently an East Sixth street woman noticed that a neighbor's porch was very dirty. It was strewn with leaves and other debris. Since the next door housewife was coming from a visit that very night, the good neighbor decided that she would befriend her and clean off her porch.

Broom in hand she approached the porch and contemplated how spic and span that place would look when her neighbor came home and how surprised and happy she would be. She began to stir the dust around and she swept, swept and swept! This porch, being like any well regulated porch, had a front and two sides. When the neighbor woman had about finished sweeping the floor of the porch she got to the side where there is a vine growing. She raked the broom into the vine to untangle a lot of leaves which had been caught there, when she heard a familiar buzzing. The thought of bees had no more than entered her head until they swarmed about her. She beat them off with a broom. But it was no use, it was a losing fight. She had to retreat but not until after she felt little pains all over her face and hands just like pins pricking her. She was completely put to rout then and fled, leaving her broom for the enemy. She still carries the scars of the bees.

SEND IT BY FREIGHT.

There was an amusing incident at one of the local depots the other day which has been going the rounds the last few days. A man who has alated to a friend.

stoppage in his speech appeared in line at the window where tickets are bought. He was noticeably excited and it appeared that he was like a nervous woman, fearing that the train would pull into the station and he would not be ready to board it.

Finally it came his turn to step up to the window and ask for a ticket for the destination of his proposed journey. He launched forth on a speech in which he attempted to tell that he wanted a ticket to such a point. After he had stammered and stuttered around for several seconds he grew red and white by turns. There were several people behind him and when the train whistled up the road, he realized in what a plight his stoppage in speech implicated him. Driven almost to desperation, he finally partly mumbled and partly sputtered:

"G-g-g-ive m-mu-me a-a-t-t-t-t-t-t-t-ticket by fr-fr-fr-freight, I c-c-c-c-can't expr-expr-expr-express mu-self."

IT HAD NO ROOTS.

Jacob Whissing is a very particular farmer. He prides himself especially on the fact that he never allows any weeds to exist on his farm very long at a time. He toils diligently all of his spare moments cutting weeds, tearing them out by the roots in many instances so that they will not grow up again in the same place. While neighbors were threshing on the Austin farm, adjoining the Whissing place one day, one of the crowd pulled up a mud-dock stalk and stuck it in the ground carefully over in the Whissing field. When Whissing espied it, he was up and after it and planning its destruction during the next few minutes. He drew his good sharp knife from his pocket and took hold of the top of the stalk. He leaned over and was about to slash it off at the ground when he discovered that it was only stuck in the ground. Of course, there was an interested audience in the adjoining field which enjoyed a good laugh at the expense of Whissing.

THE IRISH OF IT.

Mary Scanlan only recently returned from a tour of Ireland. She saw many things that appealed to her as being humorous, none of which, however, caused her as many side-aches as the one which she re-

She noted that the trains in Ireland were much different than those in the United States in that they did not have a conductor. The station agent gets on at each station looks at the ticket of every passenger and tells them whether it is the place where they should get off.

Miss Scanlan also noted that the station agent always mumbled something every time he stuck his head in the car door. Strain her ears as she might she could not understand what the agent said. She resolved finally that she would move up near the door and told her companion so. When the train stopped at the next station, she was up on the seat nearest the door all alert for the appearance of the agent. Soon as the train came to a stop he popped his head in the door and this is what Miss Scanlan heard:

"Anybody there for here?"

WANTED TO TEAM.

The other day Joseph Cannon Watson, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Watson, started out on the war path. Apparently he had made up his mind to whip some boy for he went directly to the home of the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Meacham, which is only a square distant and told their son, Jack Meacham, that he intended to fight him.

That seemed to appeal to Jack Meacham and he sailed into his little neighbor. The battle lasted for a few seconds and it was evident that the aggressor in the childish warfare was not faring so well as he thought he would. After a few tussels and some blows that were not very hard, the two young aspirants to the prize ring clinched and went to the mat for a fall. Neither was on top for a time. After wrestling for a few seconds Jack got the better of Joe and put him on his back. He was handling his opponent pretty roughly when Joe cried out that he had enough. Joe squared himself around and got up on his knees. Then he said: "Let's me and you go get some other boy."

And they started out in quest of a battle.

IMPORTANT IS COURT'S VERDICT

The question arose some time ago as to whether or not the railroad should explain such contracts to its shippers before a contract is signed. The legislature of 1905 passed a law on the question which is found on page 59 of the acts of 1905, section two, chapter 47. That statute is in effect that the shipper must be fully informed as to the conditions of the Uniform Limited Liability Contract before he signs such a contract.

Judge Blair said in his findings that the evidence showed that Weeks, acting as agent for Richey, shipped Bessie V. to New Haven under the Uniform Limited Liability Contract and he asserted on the witness stand, according to the judgment, that he had not been informed concerning the kind of contract under which he was shipping Bessie V., nor the conditions thereof.

According to the court's findings, it was brought out in the hearing that the local station did not have blanks to ship stock under any contract other than the Uniform Limited Liability Contract and that the agent could not have supplied Weeks with a Common Bill of Lading Contract had he demanded it.

Due to the fact that Weeks was not informed of the conditions of the Uniform Limited Liability Contract when he shipped Bessie V., the court returned the decision as he did for the plaintiff as the act of 1905 provides that the shipper must be fully informed of the conditions of the shipping contract before he signs it.

Although Cary Cowgill, counsel for the Big Four, who was here this morning to hear the reading of the findings in the case, did not announce his intention, it is the common belief among attorneys here that the Big Four will appeal the case to the Supreme court so as to make a test case of it. It is a question of law which has never been decided.

SOUND DIVORCE LAW IS ALREADY DRAFTED

Latest Measure to Aid State of Common Evil Will Be Introduced Next Legislature.

PLACES BAN ON SECRET ONES

New marriage laws aimed to strike at the root of the divorce evil have been drafted for introduction in the next Indiana legislature, and if enacted they will do away with secret marriages, which are the most fruitful source of divorces.

Under the proposed statutes, a court having probate jurisdiction may refuse to permit a marriage license to be issued. In this even the affianced parties could not be married.

Parties desiring to be married must make application for a marriage license at least five days before the license shall be issued. The marriage license clerk must immediately post a written notice in his office giving the names and residences of the parties applying therefor. Any person believing the statements of the applications are false or insufficient may file with the court a petition under oath, setting forth the grounds of objection to the marriage. The court, satisfied the grounds of objection are prima facie valid, shall issue a rule for the affianced parties to show cause why the license shall not be refused.

WATTS ESTATE IS VALUED AT $15,000

Will Has Been Filed For Probate in the Henry County Circuit Court.

WIDOW GETS USE OF PROPERTY

The will of the late Harry S. Watts of Knightstown has been filed for probate in the Henry circuit court, says the New Castle Times. It was drawn up March 13, 1909, and was witnessed by John W. White and James L. Shelton. The estate left by Watts is valued at about $15,000 and consists entirely of property in Knightstown, where he had lived for many years and accumulated the property that now goes to his widow.

The will provides that to the widow, Mary P. Watts, shall go the use and possession, rents and profits of three lots in Knightstown during her life and she is to have full control of them. She is also given the family horse, phaeton, carriage and harness and the household goods. After debts are paid the remaining property is to go to the children, George Watts, Lora Garrison and Grace Reagan, share and share alike.

After the death of the widow the real estate is to go to the children. To Grace Reagan will go a lot valued at $4,000 in Knightstown, and George Watts and Lora Garrison will get an interest in two other lots to the amount of $4,000 each. Over and above this amount is to go equally to the three children. George Watts is named as executor to serve without bond.

REUNION OF "OLD BRIGADE."

The thirty-sixth annual reunion of the "Old Brigade," the Eighth and Eighteenth Indiana Infantry and the First Battery, will be held in New Castle Thursday, October 19. It will be the forty-seventh anniversary of the Battle of Cedar Creek and those from here who will attend include Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Osborn, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Young and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Adams.

DENIES SHE IS MARRIED.

Mrs. Mary Sweet denies that she is married and says that her mother who called at the clerk's office to see if her daughter had not procured a fourth license to wed, was mistaken. She declares that she will get her divorce from James F. Sweet as soon as she pays the costs in the case.

AMUSEMENTS

The Portola offers as the first picture a romantic Selig drama of the Civil war, entitled "The Tale of a Soldier's Ring." The other is a Vitagraph film, "Two Wolves and a Lamb." It is a story showing the methods of crooked business and is a very thrilling drama.

The Palace will have as the first film tonight an Edison drama, "The New Church Carpet." The wife of a hard-fisted farmer uses the funds in her possession for the purchase of a new church carpet, to visit her sick daughter. The husband refuses to make up the shortage but does so when their little grandchild uses her influence. "A Chance Shot" is a Kalem picture telling a sensational western story.

"Get Rich Quick Wallingford," a dramatization made from the well-known stories bearing the same title, will be seen at English's in Indianapolis, the last three days of the week, with a matinee performance Saturday afternoon. The comedy is the work of George M. Cohan, who, turning aside from musical comedy for the moment, saw in the character and the incidents with which his creator had surrounded him some rich material for a play, "Blackie Daw," of course, is included in the adventures that Mr. Cohan has translated to the stage and Wallingford, with this able assistant, finds it far from difficult to carry into effect his various schemes. Other characters made familiar in the stories appear on the stage and play part in Wallingford's adventures. The play, it is unnecessary to add, is one of the greatest successes of recent theatrical seasons.

IS RELEASED ON BOND

Harry Shipp is Given Freedom Until Court Trial.

Transcripts in the cases of the state of Indiana vs. George Mason and Harry (Doe) Shipp, of St. Paul, who were recently given preliminary hearings in the courts of a Shelbyville justice of the peace, have been filed in the circuit court. The men along with Jack Miller, also of St. Paul, who has not yet been captured, are charged with stealing a hog from James Meal, a prominent Rush county farmer, whose home is in the St. Paul vicinity. Shipp was released from jail on bond of $250.

"Please go, sir; I can quite manage. She has these turns often. I'll give her brandy. She will be quite right."

But Dan hesitated, looking at the bit of humanity that he had laid with great gentleness on the divan covered with pillows. Letty Lane lay there, small as a little child, inanimate as death. It was hard to think the quiet little form could contain such life, fire and motion, or that this senseless little creature held London with her voice and grace. Higgins knelt down by Letty Lane's side, quiet, capable, going about the business of resuscitating her lady much as she laced the singer's bodice and shoes. "If you would be so good as to open the door, sir, and send me a call page. They'll have to linger out this entr'acte or put on some feature."

"But," exclaimed Blair, "she can't go back tonight?"

"Lord, yes," Higgins returned. "Here, Miss Lane; drink this."

THEY INJURE CHILDREN

Cathartics and Pills and Harsh
Physics May Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given. Ordinary pills, cathartics, and purgatives are too apt to do more harm than good. They sometimes cause griping, nausea, and distressing after-effects, and may actually injure the health, thus establishing a life-lasting annoyance.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as a safe and dependable remedy for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in constipation and associate bowel disorder every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowels, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies not only relieve constipation, but help to remove the cause of this ailment. They also frequently overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxative to keep the bowels in normal condition.

There is really, in our opinion, no similar medicine so good as Rexall Orderlies for the purpose to which it is directed, especially for children, aged and delicate persons. They are prepared in tablet form and in two sizes of packages; 12 tablets, 10c.; 24 tablets, 25c., and 80 tablets, 50c. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at first store—The Rexall Store. Lytle's Drug Store, Corner Main and Third streets.

At the door where he paused, Dan saw the girl lifted up, saw her lean on Higgins' shoulder, and assured then that she was not lifeless in good truth, he went out to do as Higgins had asked him. In a quarter of an hour the curtain rose and within half an hour Dan, from his box, saw the actress dance to the strains of the Hungarian Band.

CHAPTER X.

The Boy From My Town.

He went the next day to see Letty Lane at the Savoy and learned that she was too ill to receive him. Mrs. Higgins in the sitting-room told him so.

Dan liked the big cordial face of the Scotchwoman who acted as companion, dresser and maid for the star. Mrs. Higgins had an affable face, one that welcomed, and she made it plain that she was not an enemy to this young caller.

The visitor, in his blue serge clothes, was less startling than most of the men that came to see her mistress.

"She works too hard, doesn't she?"

"She does everything too hard, sir."

"She ought to rest."

"I doubt if she does, even in her grave," returned Higgins. "She is too full of motion. She is like the little girl in the fairy book that danced in her grave."

Dan didn't like this comparison.

"Can't you make her hold up a little?"

Higgins smiled and shook her head.

Letty Lane's sitting-room was as full of roses as a flower garden. There were quantities of theatrical photographs in silver and leather frames on the tables and the piano. Signed portraits from crowned heads; pictures of well-known worldly men and women whom the dancer had charmed. But a full-length picture of Letty Lane herself in one of the dresses of "Mandalay" lay on the table near Dan, and he picked it up. She smiled at him enchantingly from the cardboard, across which was written in her big, dashing hand: "For the Boy from My Town. Letty Lane."

Dan glanced up at Mrs. Higgins.

"Why, that looks as though this were for me."

The dressing woman nodded. "Miss Lane thought she would be able to see you today."

The picture in his hand, Dan gazed at it rapturously.

"I'm from Blairtown, Montana, where she came from."

"So she told me, sir."

He laid the picture back on the table, and Higgins understood that he wanted Miss Lane to give it to him herself. She led him affably to the door and affably smiled upon him. She had a frill in her hand, a thimble on her finger, and a lot of needles in her bodice. She looked motherly and useful. Blair liked to think of her with Letty Lane. He put his hand in his pocket, but she saw his gesture and reproved him quietly: "No, no, sir, please, I never do. I am just as much obliged," and her face remained so affable that Blair was not embarrassed by her refusal. His parting words were:

"Now, you make her take care of herself."

And to please him, as she opened the door, she pleasantly assured him that she would do her very best.

Dan went out of the Savoy feeling that he had left something of himself behind him in the motley room of an actress with its perfumed atmosphere of roses and violets. The photograph which he had laid down on the table seemed to look out at him again, and he repeated delightedly, "That one was for me, all right! I'm the 'boy from her town' and no mistake." And he thought of her as she had lain, lifelessly and pale on the dressing-room sofa, under the touch of hired hands, and how, no doubt, she had been lying in her room when he called today, with shades drawn, resting before the long hard evening, when London would be amused by her, delighted by her, charmed by her voice, by her body and her grace. He had wandered up as far as Piccadilly, went into a florist's and stood before the flowers. Her sitting-room had been full of roses, but Dan chose something else that had caught his eye from the window—a huge country basket of primroses, smelling of the earth and the spring. He sent them with his card and wrote on it, "To the Girl from My Town," and sent the gift with a pleasure as young and as fresh as was his own heart.

He got no note of acknowledgment from his flowers. Miss Lane was evidently better and played every night; no mention was made of her indisposition in the papers. But Dan couldn't go to the Galety or bear to see her make the effort which he knew must tire her beyond words to conceive.

After a few days he called at the Savoy to get news of her. He got as far as the lift when going up in it he saw Prince Poniatowsky. The sight affected Miss Lane's townsman so forcibly that instead of going up to the dancer's apartment Dan took himself off, and anger, displeasure and something like disgust were the only sentiments he carried away from the Savoy. He sent her no flowers, and gave himself up unreservedly to Joshua Ruggles and to a couple of men who came in to see him by appointment. And when toward four o'clock he found himself alone with Ruggles, Dan threw himself down in a big chair and looked intensely bored.

"Well, I guess we don't need to see any more of these fellows for a week, Dan," Ruggles yawned with relief. "I'm blamed if it isn't as hard to take care of money as to get it. I was a poor man once, and so was your father. Those were the days we had fun."

Ruggles took out a big cigar, struck a match sharply, and when he had lit his Henry Clay he fixed his gaze on the flying London fog, whose black curtain drew itself across their window.

"There's a lot of excitement," Ruggles said, "in not knowing what you're going to get; may turn out to be anything when you're young and on the trail. That's the way your father and me felt. And when we started out on the spot that's Blairtown on the map today, your father had forty dollars a week to engineer a busted mine and to pull the company into shape."

Dan knew the story of his father's rise by heart, but he listened.

"He took on with the mine a lot of discontented half-hearted rascals—a whole bunch who had failed all along the line. He didn't chuck 'em out. There's no life in old wood, Josh," he said to me, "but sometimes there's fire in it, and I'm going to light up," and he did. He won over the whole lot of them in eighteen months, and within two years he had that darned mine paying dividends. Meanwhile something came his way and he took it."

From his chair Dan asked: "You mean the Bentley claim?"

"Measles," his friend said comically, with a grin. "Your father was sick to death with them. When he was sitting up for the first time, peeling in his room, there was a fellow, an Englishman, a total stranger, come in to see him. 'Better clear out of here,' your father says to him. 'I'm shedding the damndest disease for a grown man that ever was caught.' 'I'm not afraid of it,' the Englishman said, 'I'm shedding worse.' When your father asked him what that was, he said the idea that he could make any money in the West. He told your father that he was going back to England and give up his western schemes, and that he had a claim to sell, and he told Blair where it lay. 'Who has seen it?" your father asked. "Any of my men?" And the Englishman told your father that nobody had wanted to buy it and that was why he had come to him. He said he thought his only chance to sell was to hold up some blind man on his dying bed and that he had heard that Blair was too sick to stir out of his room and to prospect. Your father liked the fellow's cheek, and when he found out that he had the maps with him, your father bought the whole blooming sweep at the man's price, which was a mere song.

"Your father never went near his purchase for a year or more, and when he had turned the mine he was managing over to the original company, with me as manager in his place, at a salary of twenty thousand dollars a year, he said to me one day, 'Ruggles, you'll be sorry to know that the fun is all over, I've struck oil.' But the oil was copper. The whole blooming business that he'd bought of that Englishman was rich with ore. Well, that's the story of Blairtown," Ruggles said. "You were born there and your mother died there."

Dan said: "Galorey told me what dad did later for the man that sold him the mine, and it was just like everything else he did, for dad was all right, just as good as they come."

Ruggles agreed. He left his reminiscences abruptly. "Your dad and me had the fun in our time; now you are going to get the other kind; you're going to make the dust fly that he dug up."

And the rich young man said musingly: "I'll bet it isn't half as good at my end."

And Ruggles agreed: "Not by a jugful." And followed: "What's on tonight? 'Mandalay'?"

Dan's fury at Prince Poniatowsky came back. "I guess you thought I was a little loose in the lid, didn't you, Josh, going so often to the same play?"

"You wouldn't have been the first rich man that had the same disease," Ruggles answered.

"There is nothing the matter with 'Mandalay,' but I'm not gone on any actress living, Josh; you are in the wrong pew."

Dan altered his indolent pose and sat forward. "But I am thinking of getting married," he said.

"I hope it's to the right girl, Dan."

And with young assurance Blair answered: "It will be if I marry her. I know what I want all right."

"I hope she knows what she wants, Dan."

"How do you mean?"

"You or your money. You have the darnedest handicap, my boy."

Blair flushed. "I'll get to hate the whole thing," he said ferociously. "It meets me everywhere—bonds—stocks—figures—dividends—coupons—deeds—it's too much!" he said suddenly, with resentment. "It's too much for me. Why, sometimes I feel a hundred years old, and like a hunk of gold."

Ruggles, in answer to this, said: "Why, that reminds me of what a man remarked about your father once. It was the same English chap your father bought the claim of. Speaking of Blair, he said to me: 'You know there's all kinds of metal bars, and when you cut into them some is bullion and some's coated with aluminum, and there's others that when you cut down, cut a clean yellow all along the line.' If, as you say, you feel like a hunk of metal, it ain't bad if it is that kind."

"It's got to stop coming in between me and the woman I marry, all right, though," Dan did not pursue his subject further, for his feelings about the duchess were too unreal to give him the sincere heartiness with which he would have liked to answer Ruggles.

He went over to the window, and, with his hands in his pockets, stood looking out at the fog. Ruggles, at the table, opened the cover of the book of "Mandalay" and took out the four checks made out to Lady Galorey and which he had forgotten. He hurriedly thrust them into his pocket.

"Come away, Dannie," he said cheerfully, "let's do something wild. I feel up to do most anything with this miserable fog down on me. If it had any nerve it would take some form or shape, so a man could choke it back."

Ruggles blew his nose violently. "There's nothing to do," said Dan in a bored tone.

"Why don't you see who your telegram is from?" Ruggles asked. It proved to be a suggestion from Gordon Galorey that Dan should meet him at five o'clock at the club.

"What will you do, Rug?"

"Sleep," said the Westerner serenely; "I'm nearly as happy in London as I am in Philadelphia. It's four o'clock now and I can't sleep more than four hours anyway. Let's have a real wild time, Dannie."

Dan looked at him doubtfully, but Ruggles' eyes were keen.

"What kind of a time do you mean?"

"Let's ask the Galety girl for dinner—for supper after the theater."

TRIPLE TRAGEDY

Illinois Man and His Wife and Young Daughter Murdered.

Monmouth, Ill., Oct. 3.—The bodies of William E. Dawson, his wife and their thirteen-year-old daughter Georgia were found in their beds. They had been killed by blows with an ax while asleep.

The authorities have sent out a call for the arrest of an ex-convict against whom Dawson is said to have given information which led to conviction on the charge of horse stealing. The man was released from the Joliet penitentiary several months ago and since that time is said to have threatened that he would kill Dawson. Robbers could not have been the motive, as $40 was found in Dawson's pockets.

Outside of this meager information there is no clue on which to base a search for the murderer. Even the ax with which the three persons were killed was taken away by their slayer or was hidden somewhere about the house.

Bloodhounds were placed on the trail, but failed to follow it far from the scene of the crime.

His Dream Came True.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 3.—Winfield Dunn was killed by falling from a refrigerator car after dreaming he had met a sudden death.

UNTRUSTWORTHY WAR DISPATCHES

Contradictory News Continues to Be Manufactured.

DIMS LUSTER OF VICTORIES

It Now Turns Out That the Operations of the Duke of the Abruzzi Were Against Vessels That Were Not Designed For Service in War—It is Also Made Clear That Tripoli Was Not Bombarded.

Constantinople, Oct. 3.—The Turks have captured the Italian steamship Ernesto Ilardi and have made prisoners of the members of the crew.

London, Oct. 3.—Concerning the war between Italy and Turkey, no direct news has been received from Tripoli and there is little of importance from any other point. Such dispatches as were received were contradictory and without trustworthiness, beyond the news that the Italian torpedo boat flotilla had attacked three more Turkish torpedo boats, sinking two of them. The third, according to the agent of Lloyds at Corfu, was captured.

The Italian ambassador at Vienna has been curtly informed by the Austrian authorities that should Italy attempt again to land troops in Albania that Austria will send warships to that coast and regard Italy's action as unfriendly.

In so far as actual warfare goes, matters have progressed little since midnight Saturday. The war center is Tripoli. In view of the fact that the cable between Tripoli and Malta has either been cut or is in the hands of the Italians, who are exercising over it the same rigorous censorship that is being imposed in Italy itself, there is no definite information of the situation in Tripoli. But it is clear that the so-called bombardment of Tripoli never took place. The latest information points to the effective occupation by Italy of Tripoli and Syrene within the next ten days. Italy is determined to occupy these points as her one object of the war. It is likely therefore that she will carry out these operations in the most businesslike style.

There is no direct news of any consequence concerning the actual progress of the war. The few reports that were received originated either at Rome or Constantinople, and the Italian and Turkish press are both notoriously unreliable. Actual hostilities seem for the present to be confined to the activities of the torpedo flotilla under the command of the Duke of the Abruzzi. Incidentally it may be said that the apparent over-zeal of the duke has caused some embarrassment to his government because of a hint from Vienna in reference thereto. This may be taken for what it is worth. Exactly how many little Turkish victims have fallen before the guns of the duke's ships is not quite clear, nor is it very important. The Roman press, however, prints glowing accounts of the duke's fight at Prevesa and describes how the Italian warships came boldly up within range of the Turkish ships. The Turkish naval attaché at London somewhat dims the luster of these victories by pointing out that with the exception of a couple of cruisers and four destroyers, none of which figured in the battle with the Duke of the Abruzzi, Turkey has not a single ship that would be fit to stand up to a modern vessel of war. For the last two years, according to the Turkish attaché, owing to troubles on the coast of Albania, the Turkish government kept three or four torpedo boats there to prevent smuggling. They were not intended for service in war. Their heaviest guns were one-pounders.

Hard Plight of Refugees.

Malta, Oct. 3.—The British steamer Castle Garth arrived with 1,300 refugees from Tripoli. The refugees had lost about all their possessions, and they say their suffering was beyond description on account of scarcity of food and water.

War Will Not Last Long.

Rome, Oct. 3.—Reports are in circulation that Constantinople had heard that an armistice was imminent and that mediation would follow. While these reports are regarded as premature, it is believed here that the war will not last long.

ALLEN AND COLLINS BOTH PLEAD GUILTY But This Does Not End the Smuggling Case.

New York, Oct. 3.—In the criminal branch of the United States court Nathan Allen, the leather manufacturer of Kenosha, Wis., who was indicted by a federal grand jury for smuggling jewelry, was sentenced by Judge Hough to pay a fine of $12,000. John R. Collins, of Memphis, Tenn., president of the Southern Coal company, indicted for similar crimes, was fined $4,000. The fines were paid to Commissioner Shields immediately. Allen and Collins escaped prison sentences because Judge Hough was unwilling to class them with persons who have made a business of defrauding the government.

It was upon the testimony before the grand jury of Mrs. Helen Jenkins, with whom the leather manufacturer had been friendly, that Nathan Allen and John R. Collins were indicted. A quarrel ruptured the friendship and Mrs. Jenkins went before the grand jury last August and testified that Allen had smuggled in a pearl necklace valued at $100,000 and a bracelet, articles that Allen had bought for her. Collins was accused of conspiracy, and in addition, of smuggling on June 25, 1909, a five-strand pearl necklace with a diamond and ruby clasp and a pearl and diamond bracelet.

Both Allen and Collins pleaded guilty before Judge Hough, Allen to smuggling, Collins to the conspiracy charge. The government's activity in the Allen-Collins case does not end, however, with the finding of these men. The district attorney said that a civil suit would be brought by the government to recover the home value of the smuggled jewelry, plus the duty, in all about $128,000. Mr. Wise figures that the home value of the smuggled jewelry was $80,000. The duty would have been $48,000. Also the district attorney is going after crooked custom officers who made it possible for Allen and Collins to slip jewelry in without paying duty. Both men will be called upon to tell the grand jury who they bribed.

Abraham Lichtenstein, treasurer of the Lichtenstein Millinery company, was sentenced by Judge Hough to four months' imprisonment and a fine of $1 for long continued smuggling, for which the corporation has already repaid $120,000 to Uncle Sam. Lichtenstein wept when handcuffed to a deputy marshal for the trip to Blackwell's Island. He is regarded as the principal in the famous "sleeper trunk" smuggling conspiracy which troubled the customs authorities about two years ago and which implicated several customs employes on bribery charges.

He Resisted Arrest.

Peru, Ill., Oct. 3.—Charles Wickert, a wrestler known as Tom Cannon, was shot and probably fatally wounded by a policeman while resisting arrest.

NOT MORE THAN 100 ARE DEAD

Careful Checking Over of the Inhabitants of Ill-Fated Town by Census Enumerators Reveals but Eighty-Five Persons Unaccounted For—To Swell This List There Were Probably a Few Strangers Caught.

Austin, Pa., Oct. 3.—Not more than 100 persons went down under the flood caused by the broken dam on Saturday, according to latest estimates. Two census enumerators have gone through the town from one end to the other, and they could find just eighty-five persons who were not accounted for. In addition to the missing ones, though, it is certain that there were strangers in town. The hotels, and there were three of them, had drummers always in their lobbies, for the town of Austin was a good buying center. Saturday was market day, too, and the sides of Main street were lined with wagons. How many of these outsiders are under the tangled heap that marks the site of Main street cannot be told.

A house across from the authorities' headquarters in the Odd Fellows hall has been made into a morgue and Dr. Simmons has been there receiving the bodies and checking off their identification as they came in. Justice of the Peace Johnson has sat there to take the sworn statement of relatives and sign the burial certificates.

The constabulary found that it had to deal with vandals who poked among the ruins, where a strict guard was being enforced. Eight arrests were made and the prisoners were arraigned before Justice Johnson. They had to be locked up in the schoolhouse, for the place where the jail stood was swept clean. The result of these cases of larceny is that the cavalry police mounted their ponies and established patrol routes over the whole area where the wreckage lies. No one is being allowed to cross over the valley without a permit from the authorities.

Situation Well in Hand.

Washington, Oct. 3.—E. P. Bicknell, relief agent of the National Red Cross, has returned here from Austin, Pa. He reports that outside aid will not be needed, as the local authorities have the situation well under control.

EARLY TRAINING USEFUL

Col. Roosevelt's Cowboy Accomplishment Probably Saves Wife's Life.

New York, Oct. 3.—Only the cowboy training of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt saved the life of his wife in a mishap of the road. Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt, with Archie, were riding along the cave road, Mrs. Roosevelt mounted on her favorite horse. The animal reared and threw her heavily to the ground. She struck on her shoulders and head and her foot caught in the stirrup.

That was where former Cowboy Roosevelt was of more value to the family than former President Roosevelt. He swung in his saddle, grabbed the bridle of the plunging horse and came sliding from his own saddle just as the horse hit the ground. And that horse stayed on the ground under the strenuous handling of the former ranchman.

Archie slid over from the other side and took a hand. Before the horse had time to drag her a step, the two released Mrs. Roosevelt's stirrup foot. Mrs. Roosevelt was unconscious and the two men were unable to revive her.

An automobile came along just at the right moment and Mrs. Roosevelt was conveyed to Sagamore Hill. The physician who was called found Mrs. Roosevelt had no dangerous injuries, although she had been badly shaken up by her hard fall. The information was given at the ex-president's home that Mrs. Roosevelt would be out again in the course of a few days.

Mrs. Roosevelt has always been an enthusiastic horsewoman, and she has been her husband's companion on many rides.

Reporter Making a Record.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 3.—Walter Henn, a reporter on a local newspaper, saw a negro try to snatch a purse from Miss Eva Baskett. He chased the man several blocks and captured him. The negro, who gave his name as George Johnson, was turned over to the police. A few weeks ago Henn caught a burglar in his home and captured him single-handed.

LET CONTRACTS THIS AFTERNOON

County Commissioners Name Firms
Who Will Supply County Asylum
For Next Period.

SEWARD REFUSED LICENSE

Viewers Are Named For Nixon and Fleener Highways in Jackson Township.

This afternoon the commissioners were in session and awarded the contracts for the poor farm supplies besides naming the viewers for two roads.

Thomas Jones and Edson L. Aikens were appointed viewers for both the John D. Fleener et al highway and the Robert W. Nixon et al highway in Jackson township. They were ordered to qualify in ten days and report on or before November 6.

The Fleener highway is only seven-eighths of a mile long and connects the Posey-Jackson township line road with the Rushville pike. The Nixon highway starts at Occident, runs west and then south to the Ed Caldwell road.

The contracts for supplies were awarded as follows: Dry goods, Callaghan & Company; meats, Weeks Fresh Meat & Provision Company; clothing, Bliss & Coving, and groceries, Havens Brothers.

Late yesterday afternoon the county commissioners granted the petition of Thomas O'Neil to allow him to take a partner into his place of business. A saloon license was issued to O'Neil by the commissioners and O'Neil petitioned for a right to make Barrett a partner to the license.

The commissioners refused to grant a license to Basil Seward who petitioned the commissioners for the right to sell liquor in Rushville. The commissioners held that Rushville already has its full quota of saloons. Based on the Proctor law, passed by the last legislature, the commissioners, who ruled at first that the smallest number of saloons allowed in any city under that law should open their doors here, decided that the limited number had already been granted. Donald Smith, attorney for Seward, says that he will appeal the case to the circuit court at once. The appeal was taken late this afternoon.

The commissioners approved several estimates on gravel roads yesterday afternoon and allowed the usual amount of claims.

Riley Ruby resigned as superintendent of the John Leisure highway on the Ripley-Center township line and Conrad Kiser was appointed by the commissioners to fill the vacancy.

Matthew L. McBride resigned as one of the viewers of the William A. Mull highway and William L. Walker was appointed in his stead.

The bond of Hal W. Green, as superintendent of the Hal W. Green highway in Jackson township, was approved by the board.

George Thomas filed a claim for damages in the H. B. Loudon highway matter. It is asserted that Mr. Thomas will be damaged financially by the running of the highway through his land.

The commissioners ordered the Isaac Webb highway in Rushville township constructed.

CANNON CAN'T COME.

Court Appoints Oliver Dale After an Application is Filed by W. H.
Mairs.

ALSO ASKS FOR ACCOUNTING

W. H. Mairs, through his attorneys, Megee & Kiplinger, this afternoon brought suit in the circuit court against L. R. Brooks and Chauncey D. Haskett for receiver and an accounting. In addition to that Mairs filed an affidavit and an application for a temporary receiver. The court appointed Oliver Dale and fixed his bond at $1,500.

It will be remembered that the defendant did business until a few weeks ago in the small room just east of the Windsor hotel. They sold wall paper and were interior decorators. The plaintiff alleges in the complaint that the defendants are insolvent and that they have not sufficient money on hand to pay their indebtedness. He also charges that the defendants have threatened to dispose of what stock they have left.

HAS HEAVY MAIL SINCE CITY VISIT

R. B. Smelser of Near Glenwood Gets Many Requests Following Attempt to Sell Apples.

MAKES TRIP TO INDIANAPOLIS

Since R. B. Smelser of near Glenwood went to Indianapolis and attempted to sell apples to the commission men there, he has been literally flooded with letters from Indianapolis residents asking for prices on apples and what he will ship them to the capital city for. The commission men repulsed Smelser and said that the market was full of apples. The Indianapolis News, which has been making a fight against the Indianapolis commission men on account of the high prices they charge, gave the story of Smelser's visit to Indianapolis some prominence which accounts for the fact that so many people have written to him. The News made the fact plain that the price of apples is not what it should be when the crop is so plentiful and used the story of Smelser's visit as an example of the methods the commission men use. The letters to Smelser have been addressed to Rushville and were forwarded by the postmaster.

HITS NEGRO WITH HANDLE

Will Hood Stops Man Who Attacked
His Wife.

The workmen in Colter Brothers camp in Richland township were incensed last night when a negro employee of the company attacked his wife in their presence because she would not give him money. Will Hood, an employee of the firm, threatened the negro, telling him that he had better stop his attacks on his wife. When the negro refused Hood struck him with a pick handle and knocked him down. That ended the controversy. Colter Brothers are engaged in building a road there.
